

The Rise of the Nonprofit Sector

Strong, healthy growth of the nonprofit sector has become a defining feature of the U.S. economy. The sector has grown by 41% since 2000, adding nearly $322 billion to the economy and creating 6.6 million new jobs.

Conclusion

The nonprofit sector has become a defining feature of the U.S. economy. It has grown by 41% since 2000, adding nearly $322 billion to the economy and creating 6.6 million new jobs. The sector is also becoming more diverse and technologically advanced.